

ABSTRACT

The present invention is directed toward a method for calibrating a biometric authentication device over time. The method of the present invention involves obtaining an authenticating biometric value from a biometric measurement. The biometric value is then weighted and integrated 5 into the authentication data set or template.

10

::ODMA\PCDOCS\DOCS\312276\1